

Autumn Artist

Fall is brushing her hair again.
Her invisible comb sends strands to the ground,

yellow tumbling across the street,
catching on a fence.

Her cool breath clears the sky and darkens the endless blue.

Somewhere in her soul
she finds a palette for the colors
that drip from her fingers.

(9-25-02)

Published by Bellowing Ark, Spring 2008